afternoon's exercises, the school committee consisting of Elmer D. Kinsman, Louis H. Geer and Edward Himes were present; also Mrs. Honeysuckle, he mother of two fine pairs well taken by Mrs. Wilbur E. Baldwin. Those who were especially praiseworthy for their performances were Louis M. Carpenter in the rois of Smart Alex, Frank E. R. Leete, the crute Irish boy, and the irrepressible George E. Robinson in the part of a four year old bright boy. Captivating were one pair of the Honeysuckle twins, represented by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Barnes. The witty, versatile girl was Mrs. Alice Louise Woodward. The two very proper ones were Miss Edith M. Carpenter and Mrs. Edigar Beach Russ. The little girl who lisped was perfect in Mrs. Elizabeth L. Chapman and the one wife crede easily was Mrs. M. Poennison. The girls bubbling over with fun all the time were Mrs. Robert E. Beardsley and Mrs. George E. Robinson. The dignified representative of all knowledge was George E. Geer. The gypsy of the school, who sang most charmingly was Miss Jeanneste C. Strahan, and the latecomer who was bound to be present to fill his place in the programme was the inimitable William H. Hazelburst.

The Philathea ladies in charge of the doors were Mrs. George E. Geer, Miss Josephine Rogers and Miss Matida Taylor. The home-made candy tale was presided over by Miss Mary E. Bidwell, costumed to represent a colonial lady and having her table in the elegance so characteristic of her. Mr. Kinsman, as chairman of the school committee, made a hit in his speech.

The Philathea ladies in charge of the doors were Airs. George E. Geer, Miss Josephine Rogers and Miss Mattled Taylor. The home-made candy table was presided over by Miss Mary E. Bidwell, costumed to represent a colonial lady and having her table in the elegance so characteristic of her. Mr. Kinsman, as chairman of the school committee, made a hit in his speech.

When Widows Remarry.

A strange commentary on Dr. Johnsons' famous dictum that a second marriage is "the triumph of hope over experience" comes from France. Dr. Jacques Bertillon has been collecting statistics to discover what age is most favorable to second ventures in the troubled sea of matrimony. Most amazing is the deduction that women, whether widows or divorces, between the ages of 20 and 20, are less inclined to a repetition of the great experiment than those under 20 or over 30.

The more youthful widow seems to be the less hopeful. It may be that sentiment is powerful to keep her in the bereaved state. Possibly a widow between 20 and 30 is charming and attractive to such a degree that so many men pay their count to her as to make it impossible for her to choose between them. But once the widow passes 3 she apparently feels old enough to select a second partner. In the natural course of human life it would seem that the percentage of widows under 20 would be relatively small. Between 20 and 30 the proportion will increase rapidly. Once the boundary line of 30 is past, perhaps the buoyancy of youth has gone and the widow in France mates again for a home and a protector.—Philadelphia Press.

INTERESTING LETTER REGARDING REDLANDS

from Miss Grace A. Gadbois, Formerly of This Vicinity.

A large audience was greatly entertained by the representation of The Deesrtcik Skule of 100 years ago, as given under the auspices of the Philathra ladies last evening in the vestry of the Trinity Methodist church. The dress, manners and customs of one hundred years ago were finely represented most of the costumes being particularly attractive. The platform was built to show the interior of an ancient well-kept schoolroom of the regulation sombre air.

The production was a burlesque, but of a high order. The time was the last day of school. To open the programme the tall, dignified schoolmaster entered, having every appearance of a very spruce man of a century ago. This part was taken by Wilbur E. Baldwin in magnificent style. The two parts of the programme were the forencon and the afternoon of the last day. The forencon was given over to a review of the lessons of the quarter. In this review the following members of the school distinguished themselves for speaking proficiently. William McNeely, Fred Baton, Louis Waters, and little Miss Amy Burlingame. For the afternoon's exercises, the school committee, consisting of Elmer D. Kinsman, Louis H. Geer and Edward Himes were present; also Mrs. Honey-workle the very present the control of the summer season our discomfort is comment to the summer season our discomfort is commented to the philical characterize the public library for a history of Rediands, she could have answered you: "If you want a history of reliable books, full of interesting termore with the summer season our discomfort is commented to the business of the current to the Bulletin from Rediands. "Our ranch lies in one of the most plcturesque locations in southern California. It is 2.000 feet elevation, and as you stand in front of the packing house, facing the west, you can see a distance of 40 miles right down over the surrounding towns which are scattered along the foothills; and you can also see the great Wash of the Santa Ana river. Then as the day draws to a close and the sun is setting in the west, we have a magnificent view of the—I believe—finest sunsets that I have ever seen in any country.

"I generally get up about 6.30, go have ever seen in any country.

"I generally get up about 6.30, go to the ranch about an hour later driving my own car. My wife always goes with me. We stay all day at the ranch, and as we sit at the table at noon—outdoors, you understand—facing the east and north, we look directly into the mountains, two of which peaks are snow capped, towering only a few thousand feet from our table. One is nearly 12,000 feet high, and the other, I believe, 10,000 feet. Then add to that, being surrounded entirely with green orange groves laden with the golden fruit and you have a picture, of which if you could get but a passing glance, it would remain in your hat forever.
